For generations children have played and learned in nature in all weather, following their own timelines and interests. In Forest Dreamers we continue this tradition. Learning occurs organically based on what we discover, what nature presents us with, and what interests the students. In our all outdoor gatherings we listen to and create our own stories and nature art, build shelters and fires, and record our learning in our journals, all while expressing gratitude for the land and its inhabitants.

Many families consider Forest Dreamers part of their preschool plan, a transitional year before kindergarten or first grade, or a stand-alone nature school experience. Join Forest Dreamers and let your child discover, thrive, and grow.
